

This diagram shows an exploded view of a square enclosure. It consists of a base and a lid. The lid is a flat square plate with four circular holes, one at each corner. The base is a square box with a recessed top surface. The lid is positioned above the base, with the four corner holes aligned with the four corners of the base's top surface. The diagram is a technical line drawing with gray shading to indicate the 3D form.